

JAMES ROBINSON, PG, PE

James Robinson is Environmental Division Manager as well as an Engineer/Geologist for Neil O. Anderson and Associates, Inc.

James follows his father along with five of his siblings with a Bachelor of Science degree in Geology from California State Northridge. You could say that James has worked in the field his entire life. Currently, James is a Registered Civil Engineer and Professional Geologist.

James has managed hundreds of projects, including oil field environmental cleanup, gasoline station investigations, agricultural chemical cleanups, school sitting investigations (including traffic, noise and air studies), industrial wastewater discharge (including design of lined wastewater ponds), geological assessments and earthquake damage investigations.

If you have an environmental question, please feel free to contact James.
